

Who is committing the abuse?

A large percentage of the cases APS receives are for neglect. Self-neglect is also prevalent. Abusers are typically related to the vulnerable adult and may be adult children or spouses. Abuse can happen with anyone the vulnerable adult has contact with and at any location.

Abuse can happen in adult care facilities, in the vulnerable adult's own home or the home of a spouse or relative.

Adult Protective Services

Stopping abuse of the elderly and vulnerable adults may start with you.

What is Adult Protective Services and how does it help?

Adult Protective Services (APS) investigates reports of abuse, neglect (including self-neglect) or financial exploitation of adults. Additionally, APS makes referrals to resources within the community for further assistance and to help keep the individual in the safest environment.

Who does APS serve?

APS is not just for the elderly. APS is here to help adults 18 years of age or older who because of a mental or physical impairment or advanced age are unable to care for themselves.

Examples include being unable to:

- Manage their own resources
- Carry out activities of daily living
- Protect themselves from neglect or self-neglect
- Avoid hazardous or abusive situations without assistance from others

Know the signs.

Physical abuse

- Bruising, especially on the torso or head
- Frequent injuries, with the excuse of "accidents"
- Signs of being restrained, such as rope marks on wrists

Emotional abuse

- Isolation of the vulnerable adult or refusal to allow visits with the vulnerable adult alone
- Threatening, belittling or controlling behavior by the caregiver that you see
- Behavior that mimics dementia, such as rocking, sucking or mumbling
- Outbursts or extreme anger or punishment like the silent treatment

Sexual abuse

- Frequent genital or urinary tract irritation and infections
- Indication of bruising to genitals, upper torso or upper thighs
- Vulnerable adult indicates discomfort with caregiver while bathing, dressing or toileting
- Vulnerable adult has little or no privacy for bathing or dressing which bothers him or her

Notice when someone you know needs help.

If you suspect a person you know is a victim of abuse, neglect, self-neglect or financial exploitation, it is your legal obligation to notify Adult Protective Services at: 1-888-APS-TENN or 1-888-277-8366

Neglect (including self-neglect)

- Unusual weight loss, malnutrition, dehydration
- Untreated physical problems, such as bed sores
- Unsanitary living conditions: dirt, bugs, soiled bedding and clothes
- Being left un-bathed
- Unsuitable clothing or covering for the weather
- Unsafe living conditions (no heat or running water; faulty electrical wiring, other fire hazards)

Financial exploitation

- Sudden changes in the vulnerable adult's financial condition
- Financial activity the vulnerable adult couldn't have done, such as an ATM withdrawal when the account holder is bedridden
- No food in the home, the utilities are cut off, and the home is not maintained
